“Teaching & Researching Southeast Asia” also known as the MMAT Program which started in 2014 is a workshop to encourage the development of methodologies in Southeast Asian studies in Indonesia. This year, Center of Southeast Asian Social Studies (CESASS) UGM will hold its MMAT 2021 program as a Summer Course that takes place by zoom webinar and meetings, allowing not only the researcher and lecturer to participate, but also student, enabling them to broaden their perspective on Southeast Asia region. The theme of MMAT 2021 Summer Course Program is “(Re)constructing Southeast Asia” which carries the spirit of understanding Southeast Asia from within the region.

MMAT 2021 Summer Course Program “(Re)constructing Southeast Asia” 11 October - 10 November 2021

Southeast Asia is not a mere geographical space with a passive role in the international arena. The region instead has been becoming an active agent to engage in the international political discourse that covers the political, economic, social and cultural dynamics, as well as, security issues. Ironically, the level of interest and the number of studies conducted by academics regarding Southeast Asia are less developed inside the region. Responding to this situation, Center for Southeast Asian Social Studies (CESASS) UGM took the initiative to organize the workshops on “Teaching & Researching Southeast Asia” or MMAT Program starting in 2014. This year, CESASS UGM will hold MMAT 2021 with Summer Course program format to allow not only researchers and lecturers, but also students to broaden their perspective on the Southeast Asia region.
